

Candidate Statement – Bora Muliri

I am running for TRU Senate because I believe student voices should play a meaningful role in the decisions that shape our education. From course delivery and grading policies to program pathways and academic support, the choices made at the Senate level directly affect how students experience university.

As a student balancing school with financial pressures and personal responsibilities, I understand how important it is for academic policies to reflect the realities of student life. When policies are clear, fair, and flexible, they support student success. When they are not, they can create unnecessary barriers.

I am especially interested in how academic decisions impact equity, access, and student wellbeing. Students come from many different backgrounds and life situations, and our university is strongest when those experiences are reflected in how policies are made.

If elected, I will bring a thoughtful, student-focused voice to Senate. I am committed to listening to my peers, asking important questions, and making sure student perspectives are part of every discussion. I care deeply about making TRU a place where all students feel supported, respected, and able to succeed.

It would be an honour to represent TRU students and contribute to building a more inclusive and responsive academic community.
