Submission Deadlines for Above Minimal Risk Research Involving Human Participants

Submission Deadlines

There are no deadlines for minimal risk applications. If your study qualifies as minimal risk you may submit the application anytime and it will be reviewed on a sequential basis.

Deadlines for Above Minimal Risk Research

Research Projects that may require full board review because they pose above greater than minimal risk must be received by 4:30pm of the deadline as listed in the table below. Applications received by the submission deadline will be reviewed on the date in the second column of the same row. Applications received after the deadline will be reviewed on the following meeting date.

What happens during review

The Thompson Rivers University Research Ethics Board (REB) is obliged to ensure compliance with the Tri Council Policy Statement: Ethical Conduct of Research Involving Humans \(TCPS 2\). REB members use the TCPS 2 to guide their reviews and provide feedback to researchers. REB reviews are a peer review process by which the REB supports researchers by ensuring their projects follow this guide.

This is how the REB helps fulfill TRU's contractual obligation to ensure that all researchers affiliated with TRU follow the TCPS2 guidelines in the conduct of their research and teaching.
