He was also elected to the Board of Governors for TRU as a student representative during his last undergrad year. Upon completing his BA, Sultan moved to Toronto to pursue a career in project management for the Ontario Ministry of Health. For three years, he was a member of the National Ballet of Canada's 'Turnout Cabinet', which is essentially their young patrons board.

Sultan's path back to Kamloops, BC has been a rewarding yet unconventional one. He launched a successful men's accessories start-up, which has been featured in Toronto Men's Fashion week and publications such as Elle Canada and Globe & Mail. He also released an online luxury lifestyle magazine (www.justsultan.com) as a platform to showcase his passion for travel and food. Through this initiative, he has collaborated with brands such as Fairmont, St. Regis, Conrad Hotels, Ecco Shoes, and YSL Beauty.

He is now back at TRU to complete a Master of Education. Sultan believes that every person has a unique and valuable contribution to make and he believes his lies in the capacity to serve on the Board of Governors for Thompson Rivers University for another term.
