WINTER 2022

Course	Instructor	Evaluation?
1. Access to Justice (LAWF 3780 (Selected Topics 2)) *The final assignment may be used to satisfy the writing requirement 'Leaders in the Canadian legal system have described access to justice ("A2J") as the biggest problem facing the legal profession. In recent years, research has begun to accumulate detailing the scope and nature of A2J problems, which likely touch every person in Canada at some point. This course introduces students to recent case law, legislation, and research in this pressing area, and critically examines definitions, and theoretical underpinnings, of access to justice. The course provides an opportunity to discuss, assess, and synthesize policy responses to A2J problems. In doing so, the course addresses A2J issues as they manifest in a range of legal areas (including criminal, civil, and family law), and will position students to become leaders in A2J discussions within their communities.'	Pilliar	Evaluation will be based on class participation, a short assignment, and a long assignment. There will be no final exam.

8. Climate Change and the Law (LAWF 3780 (Selected Topics 2)) ‘This course explores a range of legal responses at the international, national and local level that aim to reduce greenhouse gas (GHG) emissions due to their impact on the global climate. It introduces the main international framework on climate and the discussion at the international level of intersections between climate justice, business and human rights, the protection of biodiversity, and the pursuit of sustainable development. It examines applicable federal and provincial legislation that aim to reduce Canada’s GHG emissions, together with the policy rationale behind the carbon tax approach, debates on the efficacy of this approach, and the question of the constitutionality of federal legislation in this area. The course will also introduce the science of climate change and the development of the climate change denial movement and one of its legal manifestations in Canada in the form of Alberta’s public inquiry. It will also identify how this history of denial now informs private liability litigation proliferating in the US against industry actors. Public law litigation against governments will also be covered with a focus on ongoing lawsuits in Canada. Alternative policy approaches to the climate crisis and non-state (grassroots) legal strategies (like divestment) are also explored’	Kamphuis	Presentations & paper (no final exam)

21. In-House and Corporate Counsel (LAWF 3780 (Selected Topics 2)) ‘This issues based case study course is based on the recognition that a significant number of law graduates will become in-house counsel during their careers and the emerging reality that the roles of General Counsel and InHouse Counsel have different, some different, “rules of the road” and pressures as compared to lawyers in private practice. As such this course will explore the fundamental roles of General Counsel and In-House lawyers as legal advisors, ethical adjudicators, and business leaders. The methodology of the course will be rooted in examining problems faced by counsel in private and public companies. In-house counsel have risen in power and status within the legal profession, becoming core members of top management intimately involved in complex problem solving and strategy determination. The "cases" in this course involve questions of ethical decision making and conduct that go beyond purely skillful legal determinations. Specific illustrations drawn from the recent history of the business world will be used. Each class will center around a real problem dealing with a fundamental challenge faced by General Counsel’s and their teams in a rich context involving institutional dynamics, psychology, management policies, culture, history and many other factors.’	Festinger	60% paper 25% group presentation 15% participation

27. Legal Innovations and Legal Traditions (new, LAWF 3780 (Selected Topics 2)) - PRIMARILY ONLINE *Writing requirement may be satisfied by a longer paper with permission ‘The practice of law and the institutional aspects of governing constantly change but are rooted in legal traditions. This course will discuss both technology and legal trends that impact the future of law and governance, with a special focus on their context for the legal traditions of Canada, including Common Law, Civil Law, and Indigenous Legal Traditions, with practical exercises for the development of essential skills in the context of an evolving legal landscape.’	Mortensen	70% written paper 30% participation
28. Mental Health Law & Policy (LAWF 3662)	Dhand	70% research paper 10% paper outline and bibliography 20% class participation and presentation
29. Mergers and Acquisitions (LAWF 3780 (Selected Topics 2)) ‘This course will focus on transactions between parties which involve the acquisition of the shares of a corporation and/or the acquisition of the assets of a business. We will examine five types of merger and acquisition transactions: share acquisitions, asset acquisitions, take-over bids, amalgamations and arrangements. In the case of share and asset acquisitions (or, from the seller’s perspective, dispositions), we will focus on issues from both the buyer’s and seller’s perspective and will cover the steps and documents involved in planning and executing the transaction. We will do an in-depth review of the purchase and sale agreement applicable to such transactions. In the case of take-over bids, we will cover the issues, regulations, steps and documents involved in planning and executing the transaction from both the acquiror’s perspective, the target’s perspective and the target’s shareholders’ perspective. We will focus on the take-over of public companies and will cover the securities law that governs such transactions. In the case of amalgamations and arrangements, we will examine the rules applicable to, and the principal techniques for executing, these transactions. The focus in this course will primarily be on share and asset transactions, as they not only form the basis for understanding all other types of merger and acquisition transactions (as well as many other commercial transactions in general) but also as they are of utmost practical importance, given that share and asset acquisitions and dispositions (whether large or small) are a core component of a business law practice.’	Skinner	No information provided
30. Municipal Law (LAWF 3780 (Selected Topics 2)) ‘This course will introduce students to the law pertaining to local governments in British Columbia, and related issues such as the sources and scope of municipal powers, local government regulation of land, buildings, and businesses. The course will also	Huyth, Lee, & Wu	100% final exam
