Williams Lake Campus

Williams Lake

Williams Lake is a long-time ranching and farming community with an economy based on area resources such as forestry and mining. TRU Williams Lake has the only ranching program in BC.

About 36,000 people live in the city and region, where the cost of living is low and people know their neighbours. Williams Lake has an expanding hospital and extended-care homes, so there is a demand for university-trained healthcare workers.

The campus boasts small class sizes, usually between 15 and 20 students, depending on the program. There are benefits to such an intimate educational setting; faculty get to know their students and the campus is safe, friendly and close knit.

Visit our website for an accommodation list near campus. TRU Williams Lake is located in a residential area and there is housing within walking distance of campus.

Students can expect to pay between $700 and $1,000 per month for rent. There are buses, but they don't run as regularly as bus systems in larger centres, so most residents rely on cars for transportation.

Distance Education

LEARN WHEREVER YOU ARE

As BC's leading online and distance education provider, TRU Open Learning offers over 55 programs and 500 courses. More than 17,000 TRU students study online or by distance.

Open Learning gives you more options and flexibility in your schedule. You can complete some courses before you arrive to study on campus, saving you time and money.

While on campus, you can take blended studies combining in-class and online Open Learning courses. You can enroll in Open Learning courses at any time and complete them as your schedule allows. This allows you to maintain a flexible schedule while still getting credit for courses that count toward your full degree.

Research at TRU

As one of six members of the Research Universities' Council of British Columbia, TRU is committed to distinguishing itself among BC's research leaders. We support efforts to achieve excellence with research facilities, internal funding, research chairs, knowledge mobilization resources and student research.

CAVE WOMAN SEEKS SUPERBUG KILLERS

Naowarat (Ann) Cheeptham, PhD, Associate professor, Biological Sciences

TRU microbiologist Dr. Naowarat (Ann) Cheeptham is going to extremes in her search for new sources of antibiotics to fight multi-drug-resistant bacteria. Working with an expert cave explorer to collect micro-organisms from some of Canada's most remote cave habitats, she and her team of graduate and undergraduate researchers are testing hundreds of these tough, adaptable bacteria for potential antibiotic superpowers.

Watch the Bloomberg video about Dr. Cheeptham's research at bit.ly/cheeptham

NEW WAYS TO DESTROY BACTERIA

Kingsley Donkor, PhD, Associate professor, Chemistry

One promising area of research is lantibiotics: substances that show remarkable effectiveness against many forms of bacteria and have a potential ability to thwart the development of resistance. Dr. Donkor is working to discover the precise way in which lantibiotics destroy bacterial cells so that he can use that knowledge to develop new and even more effective lantibiotic substances.

UNDERSTANDING A DELICATE BALANCE

Lauchlan Fraser, PhD, Professor, Biological Sciences
Canada Research Chair in Community and Ecosystem Ecology

Grasslands and wetlands represent some of the earth's most important, yet highly threatened ecosystems. As the pressures of global climate change intensify, these ecosystems are coming under increasing strain. During the past two decades, Dr. Lauchlan Fraser has addressed fundamental questions in how environmental processes influence key plant species in delicate grassland and wetland systems. His work is assisting in the development of strategies to overcome challenges to species survival.

VISITING RESEARCH STUDENTS

Transnational Education

The Transnational Education Department develops innovative approaches to internationalization, offering students exciting and unique ways to gain TRU credits and global experience through a wide range of transnational education programs. Currently TRU has over 50 partner institutions in countries such as China, Colombia, Iceland, India, Korea, Mexico, Norway, Scotland, Spain, Turkey, UK, USA, and Vietnam.

ACCREDITATION PROGRAM

Study a TRU program at your home institution

TRU currently has more than 700 students enrolled in TRU business, computing science and adventure programs delivered at partner institutions in China, India and Iceland. All these programs are based on an accreditation model where TRU works with a partner institution to deliver a TRU program in the partner's home country.

ARTICULATION PROGRAM

Transfer your credits towards a degree at TRU

TRU articulation agreements allow students from partner institutions to seamlessly transfer the credits earned at their home institutions to TRU programs. Current program areas include arts, business, computing science, education, science, technology, and tourism.

PATHWAY PROGRAM

Earn a Canadian university degree from TRU

TRU partners with high schools and English language schools in Canada and abroad. These linkages create pathways for qualified students to complete their preparatory studies and then transition smoothly to university studies at TRU.

VISITING STUDENT PROGRAM

Have a study abroad experience at TRU

This program provides international students a study abroad opportunity at TRU for one or two semesters. All courses may be counted towards university credits at the student's home institution, based on an agreement between TRU and the partner institution.

Study Abroad

STUDY IN ANOTHER COUNTRY

At TRU, the words “study abroad” refer to all student opportunities in countries other than Canada, including exchanges, field schools, practica, and internships.

Enhance your degree and your university experience by studying for a semester or two in another country. Make your degree stand out by adding an international dimension to your studies. You'll broaden your perspective, expand your job opportunities, have fun—and it counts toward your degree.

STUDENT EXCHANGE

Through our network of international partnerships, TRU offers a comprehensive student exchange program. There is no better teacher than life experience and no better classroom than the world. Study for one or two semesters in another country and have those credits applied toward your TRU degree. Currently, there are opportunities at 220-plus institutions in more than 40 countries.

FIELD SCHOOLS

TRU operates specialized field schools that are unique in location, course content, program length and cost. Earn credit in courses running two to six weeks and get hands-on learning.

SHORT-TERM SUMMER PROGRAMS

This is a great way to travel and experience another culture while earning credit toward your degree. Many of our bilateral exchange partners run 2-, 3-, 4-, and 6-week programs that students can take in May, June or July. Programs usually include accommodation, some meals and cultural activities. If you are not sure about diving into a full semester abroad, try it out with this short-term experience.

NOTES:

Nishant Doshi, TRU’s First International Red Seal Cook

“It feels really good because it’s been a long journey since I got here,” said Doshi, who came from India to take business, but switched direction after a year. “It feels like quite an achievement because I didn’t know a lot about cooking when I started the program, but I kept catching up and catching up and here I am today. It’s such a wonderful feeling and I didn’t know that I was the first international student, so that makes it extra special.”

Diplomas: Upgrading available while in the program

“Before coming to TRU, I couldn’t even imagine how fast my life would change here. TRU gave me all the opportunities I was looking for to unearth my true potential. I’ve met people from various parts of the world, gained real-world work experience and most importantly, I have learned more about myself. Being a part of the TRU community has been one of the most meaningful and rewarding experiences in my life. One of the best things I did in my program was my co-op. I put my learning into direct practice right away and that helped me secure a full time position after I graduated.”
